Report of Principal and School Improvement Council

It is the mission of C.A. Taylor Elementary School to grow Palmetto's Finest, one student at a time. The Taylor school and community family wholeheartedly embraced this mission during the 2007–2008 school year. As a result, the year was marked with a plethora of academic successes.

Like the past three years, the school year began with the SDE commissioning Taylor Elementary as one of only five Lexington Two schools to satisfactorily meet all 17 of its AYP performance and participation testing objectives. Taylor Elementary also claimed victory in the District's Fourth Grade Math Bowl competition. Additionally, a fifth-grade student at Taylor won the Lieutenant Governors' Writing Contest. A monumental accolade came in November 2007 when the chief officers of the SDE named C.A. Taylor a Palmetto Silver School for its exemplary achievement in successfully working with historically underachieving groups of students to include minority students and those who qualify for free/reduced lunch fees. Finally, for the first time ever, Taylor was recognized by the Education Oversight Committee for closing the Achievement Gap in Mathematics in April 2008. The Taylor stakeholders continue to attribute these accomplishments to its steadfast commitment to using an abundance of data to make informed instructional decisions, setting SMART goals, and working effectively as teams, while also working as a true Professional Learning Community.

New initiatives for the 2007–2008 school year include: (1) Implementing a primary Science Lab; (2) debuting a third grade SMART (Start Making A Reader Today) Room to continue to foster reading; (3) mounting LCD projectors in classrooms to continue to assist with conveying curriculum via technology; (4) continuing to enhance the media collection for CD4 and 5K students, implementing a flexible schedule, and unveiling the BioCheck check out system in the Media Center; (5) providing families with subscriptions to The State newspaper in an effort to increase print in the homes; (6) enhancing and reorganizing PACT CAMP with the assistance of three PACT Coaches to help prepare our students for the 2008 PACT; (7) unveiling our Outdoor Fitness Complex; (8) hosting an intermediate Game Club and Etiquette Club; (9) establishing a partnership with the USC Spanish House; (10) and implementing a Math Monday Club and a Masters of Mathematics Club.

The SIC and P.T.A. continue to support and provide meaningful activities to foster the Taylor learning community. Both school governance organizations supported a well-attended community carnival, family circus, and family math and science nights. Additionally, the SIC sponsored an Etiquette Club for 4th and 5th-grade students in an effort to increase self-confidence and awareness. The P.T.A. continues to honor its commitment to reading by purchasing an abundance of nonfiction, leveled texts to support the third-grade curriculum in science and social studies.

As we look toward the future, we are excited to be piloting a No Excuse Words concept for Spelling in the 2008–2009 school year to enhance writing-across-the-curriculum.
