REPORT OF PRINCIPAL AND SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT COUNCIL

John E. Ewing Middle School has focused on building a community of writers this year. Our motto, "Do the 'write' thing!" involves students, parents, custodians, cafeteria workers, secretaries, teachers, administrators, and community members. Clemson University student-athletes e-mail character writing prompts to Ewing sixth graders in a character/career elective. Our students respond back to their Tiger buddy via e-mail. Our students also write to community members asking how character plays a part in their career, and community members write back to our students. During events such as PTO Parents Write Too and Holocaust Night, parents and families join together to write. Additionally, at John E. Ewing Middle School, we have enjoyed visits this year from James Robert "Radio" Kennedy and Coach Jones from TL Hanna High School; Eric Litwin, author of Pete the Cat: I Love My White Shoes; local storytellers, Brittany Moss Leazer and Carrie Stephens; FoxNews weatherman, Andy Wood; and the "Energized Guyz" from the National Childrens' Theater. We have taken students to plays, movies, and to hear professional storyteller, Bryan H. Barrows III, perform his original, one-man show entitled, "Who Was Martin Luther King?" Because of the emphasis on writing, we have seen our students improve their skills. We will continue to work hard to excel.
