Foster Park strives to provide Excellence and Greater Learning for Every Student by helping all students reach their highest level of greatness. We feel that Stephen Covey's Seven Habits of Highly Effective People will help instill the values of personal responsibility, initiative, and self-discipline in all students. These are important 21st century skills that students need to help improve themselves and their community. In addition, the Seven Habits will help students develop the necessary skills they need to work with others in school and in the workplace. For example, students are taught communication skills, conflict resolution skills, and empathy-all important characteristics that if cultivated will help benefit the student and our community. Overall, Stephen Covey's Seven Habits will help all students realize that they are all leaders, and it is our hope that as students apply the Seven Habits in their lives, they will see their own potential.
