South Carolina College- and Career-Ready Standards for Physical Education Proficiency was developed under the direction of Dr. David Mathis, Deputy Superintendent, Division of College and Career Readiness; Dr. Anne Pressley, Director, Office of Standards and Learning; Dr. Dawn Hawkins, Team Lead, Office of Standards and Learning; and Sean Brock, Education Associate for Health and Physical Education.

Introduction

Physical education is an academic discipline that provides content and instruction designed to develop motor skills, knowledge and behaviors for physical activity and physical fitness. The goal of physical education is to develop physically literate individuals who have the knowledge, skills, and confidence to enjoy a lifetime of healthful physical activity. Physical literacy is defined by SHAPE America – Society of Health and Physical Educators as, “the ability to move with competence and confidence in a wide variety of physical activities in multiple environments that benefit the healthy development of the whole person.”

To pursue a lifetime of healthful physical activity, a physically literate individual:

- Has learned the skills necessary to participate in a variety of physical activities.
- Knows the implications and the benefits of involvement in various types of physical activities.
- Participates regularly in physical activity.
- Is physically fit.
- Values physical activity and its contributions to a healthful lifestyle.

Physical education programs in schools play an important role in educating the whole child and is proven to be part of a “well-rounded” educational experience (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2011). Physical education programs provide all students access to a standards-based sequence of learning, which promotes health and physical literacy, as well as the motivation to engage in the health-enhancing physical activity, needed to achieve and maintain a healthy, active lifestyle.

The South Carolina College- and Career-Ready Standards for Physical Education Proficiency 2021 contained in this document and their accompanying indicators give physical educators a framework for producing physically literate individuals and setting students on a path to enjoy a lifetime of physical activity. The five standard statements included are informed by the current National Standards for K-12 Physical Education, which were published in 2013 by SHAPE America Society of Health and Physical Educators. These standards and indicators are written to clarify and define a standards progression in user-friendly language that learners can easily interpret. The indicators help motivate learning by showing how to set achievable goals, self-assess, and chart progress by using “I can” statements. These statements support performance-based instruction that leads to increasing levels of proficiency. This document provides a clearer understanding of what learners need to know and be able to do in order to move from one level of proficiency to the next.

Purpose and Intent

The South Carolina College- and Career-Ready Standards for Physical Education Proficiency 2021 presents a framework for the development of realistic and achievable expectations for student performance in kindergarten through high school. This document is intended to serve as a resource for South Carolina's school districts to use as they design a local physical education curriculum. A district may expand and organize course content based on these standards and indicators to meet the needs of particular student populations.

The indicators that support each of the five standards are concrete statements of what a student should know and be able to do within and across the grade-band ranges as the result of having participated in a quality physical education program. Quality comprehensive physical education programs teach the skills, attitudes, and facts needed for the student to develop and maintain a physically active lifestyle. Comprehensive physical education programs have clear expectations for students to acquire the skills and knowledge of physically literate individuals. Comprehensive physical education programs develop students who can meet the standards and indicators set forth in The South Carolina College- and Career-Ready Standards for Physical Education 2021.

A standard and indicator represents a goal or outcome of an educational program. The standards and indicators do not dictate how teachers should design a lesson, what programs or curricula to use, or how units should be organized. The instructional program should emphasize the development of students' abilities to acquire, apply, and perform the standards and indicators. The instructional program should also assure that appropriate accommodations are made for the diverse populations of students.

Proficiency-Based Learning

Proficiency-based learning focuses on students' demonstrations of desired learning outcomes. Students gain the skills, abilities, and knowledge required in an area of study, along with those necessary to be successful in college, career and civic life. Proficiency-based learning is designed to provide equitable learning opportunities for every student. In contrast to traditional systems, proficiency-based learning does not advance students based on seat time. Instead, in a proficiency-based classroom, students' progress as they demonstrate mastery of skills, abilities, and knowledge.

Students' progress toward proficiency at different rates and time, and at similar ages can demonstrate varying proficiency levels. The South Carolina College- and Career-Ready Standards for Physical Education 2021 outlines the standard and indicator proficiency progression rather than the specific grade level. Teachers have the opportunity to identify and differentiate learning for all learners based on the students' proficiency range. This document describes the learning goals a learner should demonstrate at three levels of proficiency. All performance indicators in the standards document begin with "I can..." so that learners are at the center of all physical education programs, can self-assess, and can use evidence to demonstrate progress in proficiency. The three proficiency levels used are novice, intermediate, and advanced.

The novice, intermediate, and advanced proficiency levels are a continuum that describes the distinct levels of the demonstrated skills, abilities, and knowledge for a student to master. The novice proficiency level represents foundational skills, abilities, and knowledge to be built upon. The intermediate proficiency level represents a deeper understanding and application of skills, abilities and knowledge. The advanced proficiency level represents a level of understanding and application of skills, abilities, and knowledge that goes beyond direct instruction, and includes student ownership of the learning.

SOUTH CAROLINA COUNCIL ON COMPETITIVENESS

The South Carolina College- and Career-Ready Standards for Physical Education Proficiency 2021 reinforce the objectives outlined in this profile. The standards are designed to prepare South Carolina learners to meet new challenges in college and career readiness through the development of life and career skills that will create a better-prepared workforce.

Structure and Organization

Standard 1

The physically literate individual demonstrates competency in a variety of motor skills and movement patterns. (Psychomotor Domain)

The intent of this standard is the development of the motor skills needed to enjoy participation in a variety of physical activities. Fundamental motor skills and movement concepts provide a foundation for continued motor skill acquisition. This movement foundation gives students the capacity for successful and advanced levels of performance that furthers the likelihood of daily participation in physical activity. In the primary years, students develop maturity and versatility in the use of fundamental motor skills (e.g., jumping, skipping, throwing, striking) that are further refined, combined, and varied during the middle school years. These motor skills, now having evolved into specialized skills (e.g., chest pass, penalty kick, jump shot, lob, clear), are used in increasingly complex and dynamic environments throughout the middle school years. As high school students develop competence and confidence, activities are selected for regular participation within which more advanced skills are mastered. While moving into adulthood, students acquire the skills to enjoy a lifetime of physical activity.

Standard 2

The physically literate individual demonstrates knowledge of concepts, principles, strategies, and tactics related to movement and performance. (Cognitive Domain)

The intent of this standard is for students to gain knowledge related to motor skill-acquisition and performance. This knowledge enhances students' abilities to apply concepts from disciplines such as motor learning and development, biomechanics and exercise physiology, and sport psychology and sociology. For example, this includes increasing force production through the summation of forces, understanding the principle of specificity of training, and knowing the effects of anxiety on performance. Knowledge of these concepts and principles, and how to apply them, enhances the likelihood of independent learning. In the elementary grades, emphasis is placed on establishing a movement vocabulary and applying introductory concepts. In the middle school years, students apply motor skills and concepts in varying and dynamic environments. Students have the opportunity to become more sophisticated game players due to the emphasis on tactics and strategies. In high school, students analyze motor skill performance and apply previously learned information to the acquisition of new motor skills. Students can also design and implement a personal fitness plan based on collected health-related fitness data.

Standard 3

The physically literate individual achieves and maintains a health-enhancing level of physical activity and fitness. (Psychomotor Domain)

The intent of this standard is for students to develop the ability to sustain moderate to vigorous activity levels through regular participation in meaningful physical activity. In the elementary grades, the emphasis is on an awareness of fitness components and having fun while participating in health-enhancing activities that promote physical fitness. In middle school, students develop an interest in a variety of physical activities, choose to participate in activities of interest, and achieve and maintain a health-enhancing level of fitness. High school students achieve and maintain health-related fitness standards as a result of implementing long-term fitness plans based on frequency, intensity, time and type (FITT) training principles.

Standard 4

The physically literate individual exhibits responsible personal and social behavior that respects self and others in physical activity settings. (Affective Domain)

The intent of this standard is the achievement of self-regulated behaviors that promote personal and group success in a physically active environment. These include safe practices, adherence to rules and procedures, etiquette, cooperation and teamwork, ethical behavior, and positive social interaction. Students develop respect for individual similarities and differences through positive interaction among participants in physical activity settings. In the elementary grades, students learn to work independently and cooperatively with others, apply classroom and activity specific rules, and take responsibility and participate willingly in physical activities. In middle school, the focus is on the ability to cooperate and work with others to accomplish group goals in both cooperative and competitive settings. High school students demonstrate leadership by initiating responsible behavior that has a positive influence on others. Students begin to become more self-directed and recognize the value of making physical activity a part of their lifestyles.

Standard 5

The physically literate individual demonstrates awareness that physical activity provides the opportunity for health, enjoyment, challenge, self-expression and/or social interaction. (Affective Domain)

The intent of this standard is the development of an awareness of the benefits that result from being physically active. Physical activity provides opportunities for self-expression and social interaction. Participation in physical activities can be fun, enjoyable, challenging, and health enhancing. These benefits develop self-confidence and promote a positive self-image. Elementary students learn that regular participation and practice contribute to successful performance that leads to increased enjoyment. In middle school, students gain an awareness of the benefits provided from specific activities. Students seek and explore physical activities that facilitate personal growth, challenge, enjoyment and/or interaction with peers. Participation at the high school level continues to provide personal growth, challenge, enjoyment and opportunities for social interaction. Benefits gained from participation in physical activities promote the pursuit of life-long activities that meet an individual's needs.

Adapted Physical Education

Quality physical education programs provide learning experiences that meet the developmental needs of all children and help improve mental alertness, academic performance, readiness to learn, enthusiasm for learning, and lifelong wellness. In 2004, the federal government reauthorized PL 105-17 to ensure all students receive a free and appropriate education through the passing of Public Law 108-446, known as the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEA 2004). IDEA ensures that all children, regardless of disability, receive special education. Section 1401 (29) says that the term 'special education' means specially designed instruction, at no cost to parents, to meet the unique needs of a child with a disability, including (A) instruction conducted in the classroom, in the home, in hospitals and institutions, and in other settings; and (B) instruction in physical education. The 34 code (CRF) of IDEA defines physical education as the development of physical and motor skills, fundamental motor skills and patterns, skills in aquatics, dance, and individual and group games and sports (including intramural and lifetime sports), includes special physical education, adapted physical education, movement education, and motor development. Therefore, children with disabilities must be provided with specialized instruction in physical education if needed to ensure access to the physical education general curriculum. Therefore, children with disabilities must be provided with specialized instruction in physical education if needed to ensure access to the physical education general curriculum. Physical education services, specially designed if necessary, must be made available to every child with a disability receiving FAPE, unless the public agency enrolls children without disabilities and does not provide physical education to children without disabilities in the same grades (Adapted Physical Education and Sport, 2017).

The South Carolina Physical Education Support Levels Learning Standards in addition to Adapted Physical Education considerations align closely with the SHAPE America National Standards, the Profile and Competencies of the South Carolina Graduate, and CASEL's SEL Competencies. The purpose of these standards are to assist both teachers and students with disabilities in meeting Physical Education Learning Standards through a continuum of student-centered options.

The term “adapted physical education considerations” is used through this document because the term adapted is accommodating to modifying standards, lessons, or equipment to meet the students' needs, not being adaptive, which would require the students' themselves to adapt to the standards, lessons, or equipment provided within the context of the physical education environment (Adapted Physical Education and Sport, 2017).

In order for students' to meet the South Carolina College and Career Ready Standards for Physical Education Proficiency, we have provided the following terms “with prompting, with assistance, given a variety of communication support options.” A collaborative approach to receive equipment, services, technology, or instructional strategies necessary to meet these standards may be warranted.

Glossary

(Adapted from the 2014 Academic Standards for Physical Education)

Aerobic Capacity: The total energy available to meet the demands of a prolonged activity; the ability to persist in a physical activity that requires oxygen.

Affective Domain: The learning domain in which focus is on the development of socio-emotional skills, positive attitudes, values, self-concept, good sportsmanship, and cooperative skills, particularly towards physical activity.

Assessment: The process of gathering evidence about a student's level of achievement and making inferences based on that evidence for a variety of purposes.

Authentic Assessment: A type of an alternative assessment that emphasizes the evaluation of learning demonstrated through a holistic performance of a skill or knowledge in a real-life setting.

Body Composition: The ratio of lean tissue to body fat - the percentage of body fat relative to the nonfat components of the body. This can be measured in several ways (i.e., skin fold test with fat calipers, bio-electrical impedance [BEI] test with body fat analyzer; the latter being the least intrusive). Body composition is affected by heredity, nutrition, and lifestyle and is not to be confused with body weight.

Body Management: Involves the use of large muscle activities which focus on ability to control the body/body parts such as those involving traveling, balancing, rolling, and supporting body weight.

BSER Framework: A framework of human movement originally developed by Rudolf Laban that provides a descriptive movement vocabulary for movement actions used to analyze, describe, and/or plan instruction of movement skills

- Body Awareness: What the body does such as actions of the whole body (curling, bending, twisting, swinging), activities of the body (locomotion, non-locomotion, manipulation), and shapes (straight, angular, round, symmetrical/asymmetrical) that the body can assume
- Space: Where the body moves such as directions, pathways, levels, planes, and extensions
- Effort: How the body performs the movement which consists of qualities like time, space, weight (or force), and flow

- Relationship: Relationships that occur in movement which involve the interactions between body parts, between one person and another or a group, or between a person(s) and equipment

Cognitive Domain: The learning domain in which the focus is on the development of acquiring and using knowledge such as thinking, recognizing, memorizing and recalling, applying and analyzing, synthesizing and evaluating.

Competence: The ability of an individual to participate independently and safely in a physical activity and to maintain a level of continuity in the physical activity that makes his or her participation enjoyable.

Critical Elements (Critical Features): The key factors that define a movement.

Developmentally Appropriate: Taking into account the fact that developmental change is qualitative, sequential, directional, cumulative, multifactorial, and individual.

Game Categories: Sport activities involving game-specific strategies and tactics which are classified into 4 categories:

- Invasion Games: Basketball, team handball, flag football, floor hockey, soccer, ultimate.
- Net/Wall Activities: Badminton, racquetball, table tennis, volleyball, pickleball.
- Striking/Fielding Activities: Baseball, softball, whiffle ball.
- Target Activities: Archery, bowling, golf, horseshoes, disc golf.

General Space: All the space that is available for the movement.

Indicator: An outcome/expectation of student behavior at each proficiency range that demonstrates progress toward achieving the standards.

Instructional Alignment: Congruence of student outcomes, learning experiences, and assessments.

FITT (frequency, intensity, time & type): A training principle describing an increase in the frequency, intensity, amount of time, and type of exercise as these factors correlate to an increase in proficiency and stamina.

Fundamental Movement Skills: The basic skills that children require to function in their environments classified into the following 3 groups:

- Locomotor Skills: Walk, run, jump, hop, gallop/slide, skip, leap.
- Non-Locomotor/Axial Skills: Static and dynamic balances; stretch, bend, twist, circle or rotate, rise, fall, swing, sway, shake, suspend, collapse, tip, spin, turn in place, and rock.
- Manipulative Skills: Catch, kick, strike, and throw.

Health-Related Physical Fitness: A person's ability to meet age and gender criteria on five designated physical fitness components: aerobic capacity, body composition, muscular strength, muscular endurance and flexibility.

Health-Related Physical Fitness Components: Aerobic capacity, body composition, muscular strength, muscular endurance and flexibility.

Learning Cue: A word or phrase that identifies or communicates to a performer the critical elements of a movement skill or task.

Mature Form/Mature Movement Pattern: Efficient execution of the critical elements of a skill performed in an authentic environment; usually associated with skilled performances.

Modified Games: Games in which the number of players involved is reduced, space and rules modified, to allow emphasis and increased practice of particular skills.

Movement Concepts: The language that describes how the body moves, where the body moves, the qualitative characteristics of the movement, and the content involved in the movement.

Movement Forms:

Aquatics: Swimming, diving, synchronized swimming, water aerobics.

Dance: Creative, modern, social, folk, square, aerobic dance, line, step, jazz, tap, African dance, country western, contra, ballroom, hip-hop.

Physical Activity: Movement of the body produced by skeletal muscles resulting in energy expenditure.

Physical Education: An instructional program delivered by a certified physical education teacher, designed to teach national and state standards and to develop physically educated individuals.

Physically Educated Person: A person who has learned skills necessary to perform a variety of physical activities, is physically fit, does participate regularly in physical activity, knows the implications of and benefits from involvement in physical activity, and values physical activity and its contribution to a healthful lifestyle (NASPE, 1992).

Physically Literate Individual: A person who moves with competence in a wide variety of physical activities that benefit the development of the whole person and make healthy active choices that are both beneficial to and respectful of his or her whole self, others, and their environments (Mandigo, Francis, Lodewyk & Lopez, 2009).

Principles of Movement: A broad category of concepts that include principles governing the efficiency and effectiveness of movement (e.g., weight transfer to produce force, the effect of spin on the flight of a projectile).

Psychomotor Domain: The learning domain in which focus is on the development of physical abilities, such as motor skills and fitness.
