REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT

The 2010 - 2011 school year was another year of change. Some of it planned for and a lot of it unexpected and quite challenging.

Our school district faced the same dilemma so many of our communities, families, and businesses are facing: how to maintain and improve what we do while having far fewer resources to apply to that effort. The fact that the goal of our work is the future success of our students as citizens and providers makes success critically important.

Despite the financial challenges and unforeseeable leadership changes, the Chester County School District; thanks to teachers, instructional leaders and staff; has had some notable successes...such as:

? The Chester County Child Development Program was expanded and five full day four year old classrooms are now in operation

? Pre-K data indicates more students are entering Kindergarten ready to be successful

? Algebra End – of – Course scores improved significantly...and now boast an 85% passage rate

? 1st time HSAP passage rates improved significantly

? Three schools received Palmetto Gold/Silver Awards for performance

? One school received a Palmetto Silver Award for improvement

? Physical Science End – of – Course scores are up considerably from 37% to 67%

A significant part of the success of our children as learners can be attributed to people outside of the school system: parents and grandparents, churches and community organizations. So I would like here to thank all parents, grandparents and others who read regularly to pre-school and school aged children, all adults who encourage students to stay in school, attend regularly and who ask, "How are you doing in school?", and all business leaders and other employers who make it clear that they place value on a high school diploma and actually check to see if an applicant has one.

As trite as the saying has become, it truly does take a village to raise a child. We, as educators, need your help and support, but more importantly, our children do.

John Taylor -Interim Superintendent
