REPORT OF PRINCIPAL AND SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT COUNCIL

Lexington High School continued to improve during the 2012-2013 school year. Preparing students to be 21st century learners continues to be a top priority. We were proud this year when 63% of the 2013 senior class graduated as completers of majors. The previous year (2012) only 44% received them. Their focus on learning helped them form their futures.

With more than 3,100 students and larger class sizes, it was a daily challenge to help each student and give individual attention. However, teachers collaborated to develop innovative strategies to help improve test scores and worked with students individually to become successful.

Through caring teachers and a supportive staff, test scores soared. The LHS pass rates for all four End-of-Course Exams (Algebra 1, Biology 1, English 1 and U.S. History) improved from the previous year.

Communicating with all stakeholders remained a challenge. We took the advice and suggestions of our School Improvement Council and offered emails to parents, various workshops and information nights in an attempt to keep our students and parents informed. One of those suggestions, Registration Information Night for Upper Classmen, gave students and parents a time to meet with teachers and students about classes for the coming year.

Besides academic successes, Lexington High School shone artistically and athletically. Our Fine Arts Department worked together to display student talent and won many awards. Our Athletic Department once again won the Director's Cup, signifying that Lexington High School is the top 4A athletic program in the state of South Carolina! Girls and boys cross country, girls golf, wrestling and baseball teams all won State Championships.

With changing demographics, students and families found themselves with fewer amenities than in the past. Our School Improvement Council spearheaded a Food Improves Thinking (FIT) program to provide healthy, nutritious meals on weekends for families who needed them. The community volunteered their time and resources to make this program a success. We plan to continue with this program to help our families.

Lexington High School is truly blessed to have a community of caring with superior academics, arts and athletics! We will continue to strive to be the best!

Principal Melissa Rawl and SIC Chair Billy Chastain
