Langston Charter Middle School helps all students develop the world class skills and life and career characteristics of the Profile of the South Carolina Graduate by providing a safe and academically challenging educational environment. In 2014-15, 97% of 8th graders received high school credit in at least one of the following: Spanish I, English I, Algebra I, Geometry I, Keyboarding. Their average EOCEP score was 98%. All students enroll in an advanced math curriculum, including Algebra I and Geometry I Honors for those who qualify. Math instruction is supplemented weekly with online, adaptive programing designed to both support areas of weakness and extend learning for those moving ahead. English teachers address high-level standards as they focus on critical thinking, logical reasoning, use of multiple resources, and writing for various purposes. Qualifying 8th graders take English I Honors. Students take 3 years of Spanish, finishing 8th grade with one unit of foreign language credit. Science teachers collaborate with Berkeley's Science Curriculum Project, implementing an innovative curriculum which addresses the Next Generation Science Standards and the ELA standards related to Literacy in Science and Technical Subjects. 94% of LCMS students met or exceeded the SCPASS science standards. Social Studies teachers incorporate critical analysis, discussion, presentation, individual and group projects, field studies, and creative teacher-led instruction to help students develop an understanding of historical events and trends; major figures in world, US, and state history; and the development of social, economic, and political structures across time. 96% of LCMS students met or exceeded the SCPASS social studies standards. In Leadership class, students collaborate to research, write, and debate mock legislation for Youth in Government; research foreign nations for the Model UN conference; and produce original documentaries for the C-Span StudentCam competition. Students engage in community service activities throughout the year, contributing thousands of hours of service to local agencies annually. Book studies each year help students expand their local focus to a broader understanding of their community and world. Every student is encouraged to take responsibility for his/her behavior and learning, attend academic assistance sessions as needed, and use all resources available to achieve success. Instruction is designed to ensure that all students are ready for high school and beyond. Greg Abel, Principal Brian Woodard, Board Chair
