

2012-13 Priority Schools – South Carolina’s ESEA / Federal Accountability System

Priority Schools are the lowest performing Title I schools.

- Priority schools are determined by ranking each Title I school’s total weighted composite index score (which determines the school’s letter grade) from lowest to highest.
- Twenty-seven schools are designated as Priority Schools, which is equal to at least five percent of the total Title I schools served by the state.
- Primary schools, which do not have grades that are tested by the state assessments, are not included in the ranking for Priority Schools.
